CLASS

Mrs. Hill, a deft make-up artist, puts the finishing touches to one of the cast members of "Call Me Darling."

"LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOR"

The comedy play "Love Your Neighbor" was presented March 1951 by the Class of 1952.

The play centered around Tessy Vashki who loved her Iowa home town. Tessy was about to marry Ossy Fredericks, Chicago glamour lad. The Vashki household buzzes with wedding preparations, a pair of vociferous twins, a tuba-playing kid brother, and of all things, bees.

The bees belong to Johnny Jones, ex-marine, who has moved next door while Tessy was away at college.

After many riotous events, Johnny gets Tessy, Ossy gets one of the twins he's been sweet on all along, and the bees get smoked out, along with everyone else.

"CALL ME DARLING"

"Call Me Darling" another comedy play, was presented December 1951 by the Class of 1952.

The Haskins family is all a dither because they are expecting momentarily the return of their only son, Billy, who through his heroic exploits during a shipwreck has become a national figure.

Complications pile one on top of the other when a local filling station is held up, Pamela, the college reporter, elopes, and poor Billy is suspected in both cases.

However, in the end Billy is exonerated and wins the girl of his choice. Neeley, Billy's easy-going, homeless pal, who was mistaken for the hero, is adopted by one of the town's most exalted citizens, and the Haskins family once more basks in the reflected glory of THE HERO.

The cast of "Love Your Neighbor" presenting gifts to the director, Mr. Culbertson, and Mrs. Hill, in charge of make-up.

"The two hundred dollars has come home to roost."
"Call Me Darling"

PLAYS

"She's fainted and all I said was 'blood'!"
"Call Me Darling"

"Are you sure you're feeling well, Agatha?"
"Love Your Neighbor"

"What a beautiful knife! It will come in so handy in the kitchen."
"Call Me Darling"

Prophecy

by Carole Elbers

In the year 1962, I, Carole Elbers, was sitting at my desk in the office of the President of the Standard Oil Company. I had a few moments to spare so I turned on my television set and there appeared the members of the Class of 1952.

As the first channel came into focus I heard the melodious voice of Gene Dietrich. He was the hit of the season and with his agent, Glenn Reinbold, had seen a lot of country. They were accompanied by Bob Hubbard, who, as the Heavyweight Champion of the World, offered to fight anyone in the audience as an added attraction to Gene's show.

Turning the dial to a different channel I saw the last part of an ad from the Ed Elbers-Marge Massoll Crosley Auto Sales Company. They were trying like mad to sell 10,000 cars a year. The show that followed the ad started with an expert from the Hit play "I've Landed Him!!" starring Marlene and Darlene Kamm. After that was the Pat Schneider and Donn Spiekerman At Home show where Pat gave out with cooking hints assisted by Louise Woizeschke. Donn showed how to repair things around the happy home.

I flipped the dial and saw a shot of New York City. On the skyline I saw the now familiar outling of Bauer Hospital where Doris Wegner was the head nurse. A few blocks away I saw the Ackerman Athletic Club where Dick Ware was head trainer. Jerry Reinsch was a frequent visitor there after he made millions racing his Plymouth around the world. Dale DuRussel traveled with him as mechanic.

Also on the screen I saw the A and B Bernthal Secretary School going full blast. Ethel Wagner was the general manager.

Suddenly the scene distorted and I picked up a picture of the Gugino ranch in Texas where Frances was herding cattle in a Cadillac while dictating to her secretary Verna Liebknecht. Frances picked up the phone in her car to tell Nancy Markhart, her business manager, that she was on her way home.

I was brought back to the present when my Secretary, Mary Gruber, announced that one of the Corporation Board Members, Irene Sahr, had arrived to see me. Irene had purchased forty-nine percent of Standard after she made her money selling a new hair dye.

Class Will

by Marlene and Darlene Kamm

We, the class of nineteen hundred and fifty-two, of Reese High School of the town of Reese, county of Tuscola and state of Michigan, being of sound mind, memory, and understanding, have called you together upon this solemn and serious occasion to witness our last will and testament, hereby revoking and making void any former wills we may have previously made during a period of temporary optomism.

Dale DuRussel wills to his brother Floyd the ability to pull the wool over the teachers' eyes. May the wool stay there till your Senior year is finished; otherwise you will never make the grade.

Frances Gugino gives to Elaine Hirschman her advice as to keep her perfect set of teeth. Be sure to take good care of all twenty eight because the government has priorities on all false teeth.

Ruth Bauer and Doris Wegner leave their abilities to walk as graceful as a powers model, and to be able to smile over all the rough spots during their Senior year, and last but not least their great ability to keep their handsome men. They leave this to Agnes Schulte.

Gerald Reinsch and Robert Hubbard will to Jack Elbers the ability to let down their hair to camouflage their eyes so the teacher can't tell where they are looking during a test. May you get more "A"'s next year Jack. They also leave you their booklet on "How to Woo" women in six easy lessons.

To James Schulte, Richard Ware wills his guitar which Jim can play while his opponent is being counted as TKO.

Edward Elbers, Jr. wills to Ronald Bader a newly written composition "What My Ford Has That Your Chevie Hasn't Got."

Patricia Schneider and Duane Ackerman leave to Lionel Ackerman there reknown skill in pitching also all their worn out baseballs and softballs. Perhaps he can make some use of them.

Irene Sahr leaves to Roderick Schulte the undying love for horses.

Marjorie Massoll, Verna Liebknecht, and Louise Woizeschke leave to Kay Colliton the ability to go out on Saturday and Sunday nights and still look fresh as a daisy on Monday mornings.

Donn Spiekerman, Gene Dietrich, and Glenn Reinbold bequeath to Ward Thorp and John Cragg their ability to look innocent with a blank expression of dumbfoundness when the teacher catches them at some of their pranks. They hope John and Ward have more luck.

Marlene and Darlene Kamm leave to Betty Lewis their quiet dispositions and untalkative ways, also the policy that two heads are better than one.

Beatrice and Arletta Bernthal and Ethel Wagner bequeaths to Shirley Howell to disregard all boys and live up to the policy "To be wise is to disregard boys."

Carole Elbers bequeaths to Mary Ware to become chief editor of the School Paper in her Senior Year. Carole gives you the worn out pencil, typewriter and some unused paper.

Mary Gruber leaves to Delores Ferguson and Marilyn Felske her ability to get good marks in school by being friendly with the teachers. But she guarantees the teachers are not soft-hearted.

To Nancy Abbey, Nancy Markhart leaves her ability to smile; for, remember, laugh and the world laughs with you, cry and you cry alone.
